Purchasing a business may be one of the biggest decisions a person makes, but did you know that there are Workers Compensation Board of Manitoba responsibilities that come with it?

Before purchasing a business a potential owner should obtain any rate information from the seller so they have an understanding of what their rate will be once they take over the business.

The WCB will determine if the business is operating in a similar way based on a number of factors including (but not limited to) comparison of customer base, product or service offered; business name; workforce; and continuation of business operations between the close under the old ownership and opening under the new ownership.

If a business continues to operate in a similar way after being sold, the WCB will transfer the claims experience and the existing rate from the old employer to the new employer to reflect the experience of the ongoing business. This may be a benefit if the seller has had good experience and earned rate reductions as a result. However, if their claim experience has been poor, the rate a buyer could adopt may reflect that.

A potential buyer is encouraged to ask about the WCB rate before finalizing the transaction and request the seller provide a Disposition of Business Enterprise Certificate. The Disposition of Business Enterprise Certificate is provided by the WCB to the seller to confirm the account with the WCB for the existing business has been fully paid and all requirements have been met. If you do not secure this, you may be responsible for any money owing on the seller’s account.

Due to release of information guidelines, WCB cannot provide the Disposition of Business Enterprise Certificate to the buyer, it must be obtained by the current owner of the business.

“When you buy someone else’s business, if they owe WCB any money you will inherit that cost,” said Ted Liusz, Supervisor, Assessment Program Services with WCB.

“Get the rate of the business you want to buy and then compare it to the new business rate that’s available on our website... Obtaining this information before the final purchase can prevent an unwelcome cost surprise when you register your new business with the WCB.”

If you are new to business ownership in Manitoba, the WCB website can be a valuable resource of information. You will find publications including brochures, fact sheets, newsletters and guides to help you understand your rights and responsibilities within the compensation system. In addition, there are several online services which can benefit you.
